

The Pigs:

Napoleon

A young boar pig.

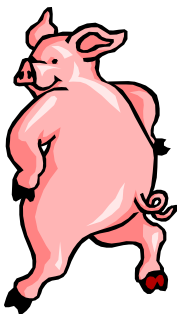

“He was a large, rather fierce looking Berkshire boar, the only Berkshire on the farm, not much of a talker but with a reputation for getting his own way.”

Snowball

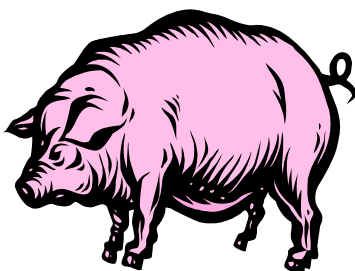

“A more vivacious pig than Napoleon, quicker in speech and more inventive, but he was not thought to have the same depth of character.”

Squealer

“A small, fat pig with very round cheeks, twinkling eyes, nimble movements and a shrill voice. He was a brilliant talker, and when he was arguing some difficult point he had a way of skipping from side to side and whisking his tail, which was somehow very persuasive.”

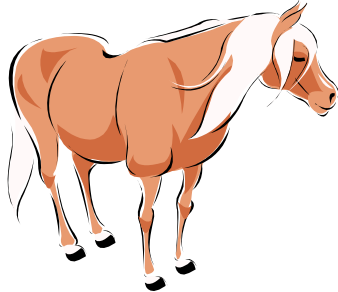

Old Major

“He was twelve years old and had lately grown rather stout but he was a majestic looking pig with a wise and benevolent appearance.”

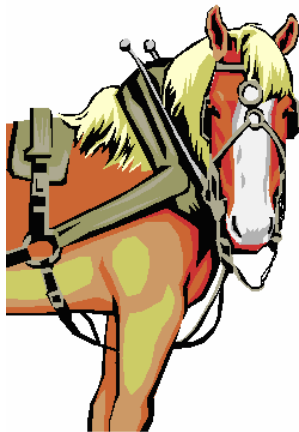

The horses:

Clover

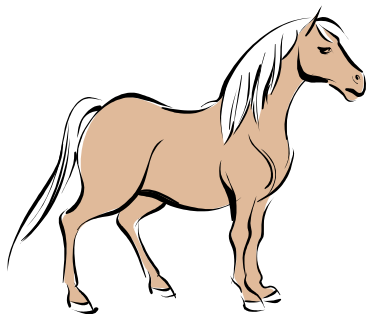

“Clover was a stout motherly mare approaching middle life. She had never quite got her figure back after her fourth foal”

Boxer

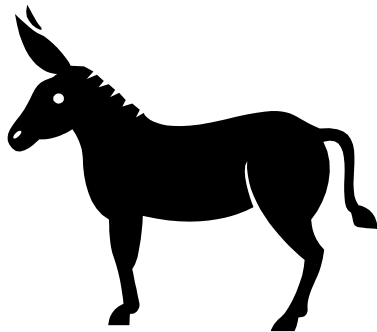

“An enormous beast, nearly eighteen hands high and as strong as any two ordinary horses put together. A white stripe down his nose gave him somewhat stupid appearance but he was universally respected for his steadiness of character and tremendous powers of work.”

Mollie

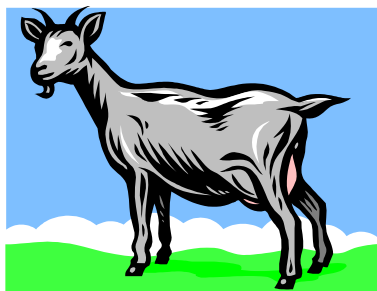

A pretty, foolish mare who drew Mr Jones’ trap. “She began flirting her white mane hoping to draw attention to the red ribbons it was plaited with.”

Benjamin the donkey

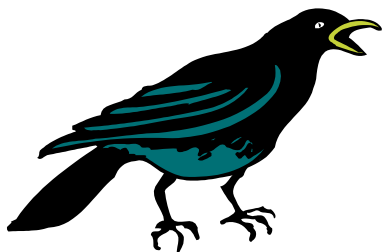

“The oldest animal on the farm and the worst tempered. He seldom talked and when he did it was usually to make some cynical remark. Nevertheless, he was devoted to Boxer.”

Muriel the goat

“Muriel, the goat, could read somewhat better than the dogs and sometimes used to read to the others ...”

Moses, a tame raven

He was Mr Jones’ especial pet, was a spy and a tale bearer, but he was also a clever talker. The animals hated Moses because he told tales and did not work.

The dogs:

Bluebell, Jessie and Pitcher

The farm dogs. Napoleon takes six of their puppies and rears them secretly: “Though not yet full-grown, they were huge dogs and as fierce-looking as wolves. They kept close to Napoleon. It was noticed that they wagged their tails to him ...”
